

MPR-Clamp brackets

galvanised

Field of application

■ For safe force transmission when installing MPR-Support channels together with threaded rods, anchor plugs and screws

Advantages

- Two versions available
  Heavy-duty type available for transferring large forces
  Safe, folded edge prevents
- expansion of the rail slot

Standard version

Heavy-duty version

| Features           |                      |            |          |            | fire protection certified MIO-MIG |
|--------------------|----------------------|------------|----------|------------|-----------------------------------|
| Design             | For support channels | For thread | Part no. | Sales unit | Pack unit                         |
| Standard version   | 41/21–41/124         | M8         | 165188   | 100        | pieces                            |
|                    |                      | M10        | 151198   |            |                                   |
|                    |                      | M12        | 151195   |            |                                   |
| Heavy-duty version |                      | M8         | 151097   | 25         |                                   |
|                    |                      | M10        | 151098   |            |                                   |
|                    |                      | M12        | 114489   |            |                                   |
|                    |                      | M16        | 151100   |            |                                   |

